

FATHERHOOD: NOT FOR SISSIES

A 90-Day Devotional by Carlton Hughes and Holland Webb

Being a father in today's world requires patience, fortitude, and an endless supply of baby wipes. Men need hope and help at every step of the parenting journey, from the challenges of the early years and its diapers and terrible twos to the "on-the-go" years of carpools and endless activities. Fatherhood: Not for Sissies features story-based devotions from the trenches of one of the toughest yet most rewarding jobs.

Blending personal experiences with humor and spiritual application, Fatherhood: Not for Sissies will encourage dads to do their best for God and for their families. Scripture and spiritual application accompany stories of trial and triumph to help men guide their children down the right road.

Grow closer to your Heavenly Father as you find strength and insight through the lens of dads who have been there, done that, and can no longer afford the t-shirt.

Carlton Hughes has spent hours and hours chasing his two sons through the cross country courses and tennis complexes of eastern Kentucky. He has fixed boo-boos, carpooled numerous kids, and weathered trials with his now-college-age boys, who both had a knack for volunteering their dad for everything. As a communications professor and children's pastor, he has also served as a "surrogate father" for hundreds of kids.

Carlton has been published in numerous books, including Chicken Soup for the Soul and several devotionals from Worthy Publishing. He is one of the founding writers at Almost An Author. An award-winning writer and speaker, he is a longtime planning committee member of Kentucky Christian Writers Conference.

When the adoption agency called to say they had two little boys aged three and four waiting for him, Holland Webb vaguely suspected an adventure was afoot. He was right. Since then, Holland and his boys have found new adventures in the mountains of Guatemala, the deserts of Morocco, and the cornfields of Iowa. They now live in South Carolina where the boys are entering adulthood and Holland is entering his dotage.

A full-time freelance writer, Holland produces content for businesses, marketing agencies, and schools. He also writes for Devozine and Keys for Kids and is a regular columnist for Almost An Author.
